

The International Association of Dive Rescue Specialists is a non-profit organization for the water rescue and recovery professional. To become part of the IADRS is to forge an indispensable link between yourself and others solving the same problems you face everyday. Think of what you know, what you have learned. You aren't alone. All over the world, we do everything we can to save lives. For the past twenty years we've joined together to pool our combined experience and knowledge. Our shared expertise, ideas and resources are tremendous. Join us and bridge the communication gap by becoming a part of our international information, communication and education network of water rescue professionals.
